

Job Advert – Technical Instructor

Location: Worcester; travel throughout UK for delivery

Terms: Permanent Full-Time

Salary: £ competitive based on experience

About the Role

We are looking for a Technical IT trainer to join our ever-growing Training team. The role will be expected to cover many Technologies, although do not worry if you don't know them all right now, we can help plug the gaps.

- CompTIA A+, N+, S+
- Windows Server, Networking, AD, DPM
- Virtualisation (Hyper-V, VMware)
- SQL Server
- SharePoint
- Cisco
- Unix/Linux

You can either be a Technical Instructor who needs upskilling in technologies or someone who understands the tech and has a passion for teaching who we can develop into an amazing instructor. The successful candidate will deliver on average for 3 out of every 4 weeks.

We deliver to a wide range of customers include Corporate companies, Local Authorities, Central Government and the MOD. As such delivery can be on secure sites in the UK, as such UK Security Clearance (SC/DV) would be a major benefit but if not, the willingness to go through the process.

When overnight travel for on-site training is required, all reasonable expenses are paid by Quanta. So, whilst you could be based anywhere within the UK a willingness and flexibility to travel is needed and with our HQ in Worcester, we would like you to show your face there from time to time also.

As a professional development company, Quanta will offer you dedicated training enabling you to fulfil your potential. If you think the role sounds like you or you are keen to understand more than please get in touch.

Requirements

- Good working knowledge of:
 - IP networking
 - Virtualisation (Hyper-V or VMware)
 - Cisco
 - Windows and other operating systems
- Can demonstrate initiative and be a self-starter who is confident to take on a training role and develop training and technical skills
- Qualifications in Microsoft Server, Cisco, VMware, or CompTIA are desirable
- Some experience of delivering training is advantageous, but full OJT and a 'train the trainer course' will also be provided for the right person
- A willingness to contribute to course development

About Quanta

Quanta has been a major player in the Training and Development world in the UK for over 30 years. The width and breadth of our portfolio goes all the way from Technical IT, where it all started back in the 90s, through a Best Practice Portfolio of Project, Programme, Portfolio Management, Agile and Scrum, IT Service Management, all the way to an extensive Personal Development and Leadership offering.

Our customers are from 4 main divisions: Defence, Healthcare, Central Government, and our extensive corporate client base. Many of these household names have been with us from the start. We pride our services on our second to none customer service, which is one of the cornerstones as to why clients come back to us year on year and why Quanta has lasted the test of time.

Quanta is all about developing people giving them the skills they need to excel at their jobs and lead rich and fulfilling lives. This is at the heart of both the training we deliver in the classrooms and the ethos of the company itself in developing our staff. We are viewed by our customers as a valued partner, not just a training provider.
